Product Description

The 7-Pot Barrackpore comes from Trinidad and is a rare chili pepper. The pots are shaped similar to a habanero or a ghost pepper. The skin is typically pimpled and form a tail, per the photos. The pods start out green and ripen to a vibrant shade of red. An old story goes that the 7-Pot is so named because a single pod can heat 7 pots of chili or stew, so keep that in mind when consuming this crazy hot pepper. Sweet and fruity flavor. All-over mouth burn. <https://youtu.be/fNEZQoMmEbU>

Datil Pepper Plant

Days to Maturity: 60-75 Description: Jalapeno Orange- (Capsicum annuum)-This is an orange variant of the Jalapeno. It has a medium heat level and leans toward more of a sweet citrus flavor than other Jalapenos. If left on the plants too long they will eventually turn red and get sweeter. The Jalapeno Orange chile plants grow 2 to 3 feet tall.

Beaver Dam Pepper Plant

Days to Maturity: 70 Description: Beautiful bright red peppers with mild to medium heat. 6-7 inches long, 2-3 inches at the top and tapered. Very sweet in addition to being hot, and mild enough that you can use a good bit without overpowering the dish. Seedstock came from Christopher Hoetschl, through the Seed Savers Exchange yearbook.
